Wandering into the eighties, unguided, we look for bridges to support us through our transitions. Change is happening all around us: in our school, in our nation, and in our world. New problems such as the dilemma of how to accommodate the entire school at the Christmas Dance need new solutions based on wisdom gathered from the past. Student Council compromised with the administration by locating a hall that was comparable to Rose Court yet could hold more couples, and for a reasonable price. The successful dance, held at the California Club, became the foundation of a bridge between the students and the administration. We find bridges throughout our lives to help us grow.

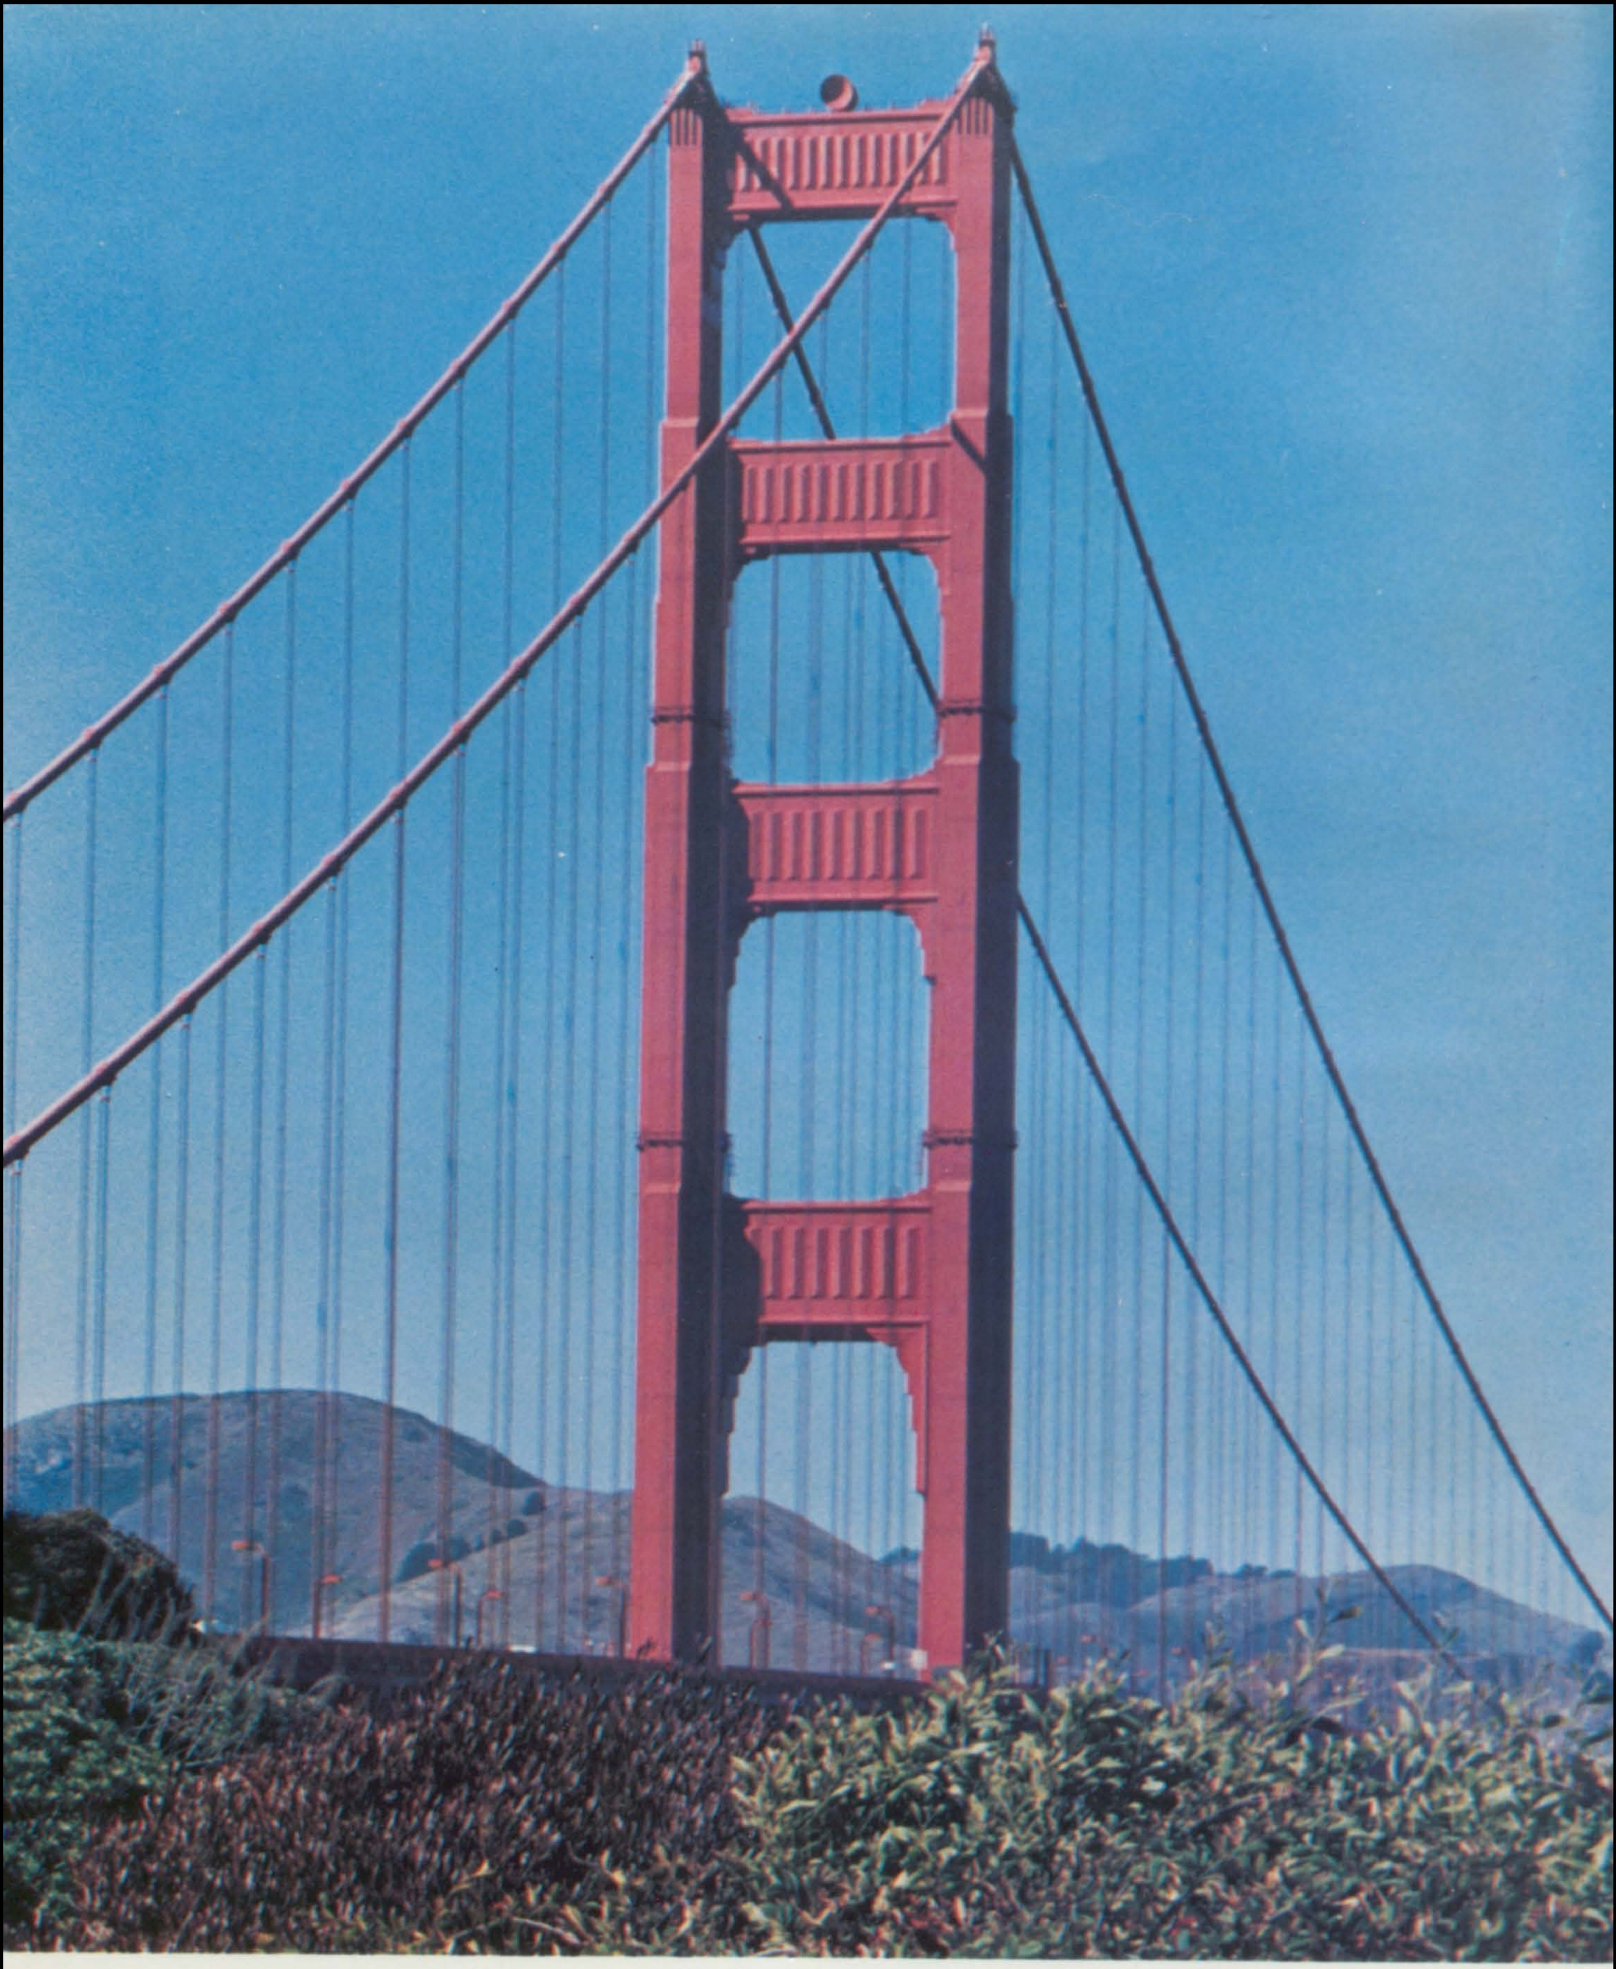

There are many symbolic bridges at Saint Rose Academy. The Seniors, representing the traditions of Saint Rose, bridge the gap for Freshmen from grammar school to high school by adopting them as little sisters. The Seniors also give support to the Juniors by presenting them with rings and passing traditions on with confidence that the Juniors will carry them with pride. Students cross the bridge of Student Council to the faculty to exchange ideas and work together to build a bridge into the future. The Father-Daughter Dance and the Mother-Daughter Tea help keep our parents in touch with our lives. The Tea, a new tradition, begun by the Sophomores, helps build the bridge the Juniors have been working on: a bridge to our parents.

Saint Rose is a bridge in itself. Its diverse student body brings girls together, making Saint Rose a connection of many cultures, backgrounds, and personalities. The school is a voyage from childhood to the adult world, and it provides the structure the students need to walk across this passage.

We build bridges to God and our fellow human beings . . .

You are my Glory.

Administrative Team

This year our administrative structure consists of four basic extensions: the principal, Sister Celeste; the vice-principal, Sister Sharon; the Dean of Students, Ms. Hack; and the Dean of Studies, Mr. May. By the means of new committees, more members of the faculty and student body are involved in making the necessary decisions. In this manner, the administration has been able to form a bridge between the faculty and the students.

In her position as Principal, Sister Celeste is generally responsible for the overall running of the school. Sister views herself as someone who works within the school community ensuring that Christian values and attitudes are evident in the atmosphere of the school. Sister also works with the faculty and Religious Activities Council to clarify the purpose of Saint Rose, and to help the teachers, the students and their parents grow in faith. Sister Celeste defines her role as that "of a bridge between the philosophy and goals of Saint Rose and the internalization of these values by the students."

Sister Sharon is vice-principal, and she views her part in the administration as one of suggesting fresh ideas, evaluating feedback and revising proposals, which lead to the result of a smooth and effective relationship between the students and faculty.

Ms. Hack, in the role of Dean of Students, feels she is a part of the support system which counsels and sets limits for the students. "Some appreciate this support, others come to appreciate it later, and I imagine there will always be the few who never reach the level of appreciation."

Mr. May's role as Dean of Studies spans from planning and scheduling classes to the counseling of students in need of academic help. He also relates to the administrative team the concerns brought to him by the students.

These four people form the administration. As with a suspension bridge, the administration is the supporting cable which joins the faculty with the Student Body to form a greater union, the Saint Rose Community.

CLUBS/ ORGANIZA-TIONS

At St. Rose there is an organization or club devoted to almost every interest.

The Student Council is a group of leaders of the orgainzations working together to solve common problems, to improve school life, and to promote school spirit.

The Religious Activities Council plans Masses and prayer services for the spiritual life of our Christian school. The Peace and Social Action Club and Model United Nations are for the more ecologically and politically minded student, while the California Scholarship Federation and National Honor Society are for the scholars who have distinguished themselves. The HARBINGER, our newspaper, and VERITAS, our yearbook, provide an outlet for not only journalists, but artists and photographers as well.

The International Club is a mixture of students who share their various experiences to develop a sense of appreciation for cultural differences. Like all the organizations and activities at St. Rose, it attempts to bring together those who otherwise would not know one another, as it brings forth talents previously undiscovered.

The organizations of St. Rose Academy are a bridge between the theoretical and the practical, the idea and the application, the classroom and the world.

Meetings of the council are held twice monthly to discuss student concerns and to plan and coordinate special activities such as Hello Week, Spring Week, honor assemblies, and the Christmas Dance, which for the first time in many years was held off campus at the California Club.

def. Sports:

athletic activities requiring skill or physical ability and often of a competitive nature. Throughout the school year many students participate in a variety of sports activities. For those who participate in sports, it is very rewarding. Sports are a chance for athletes to work as a team, to develop new skills and talents, to involve athletes in organized competition, and build a sense of unity among the students.

Gold and White and G.A.A. are two organizations that try to involve as many students as possible in sports around St. Rose. Rallies and cheers are very effective for morale within the school.

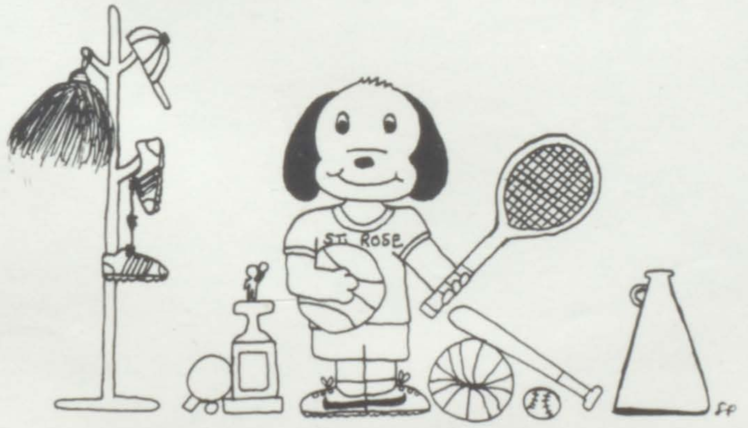

Those who are not involved in the team sports show their spirit by attending games and making posters. This is like a "bridge" between the team members and the spectators, a chance for everyone to get involved in the spirit of sports.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

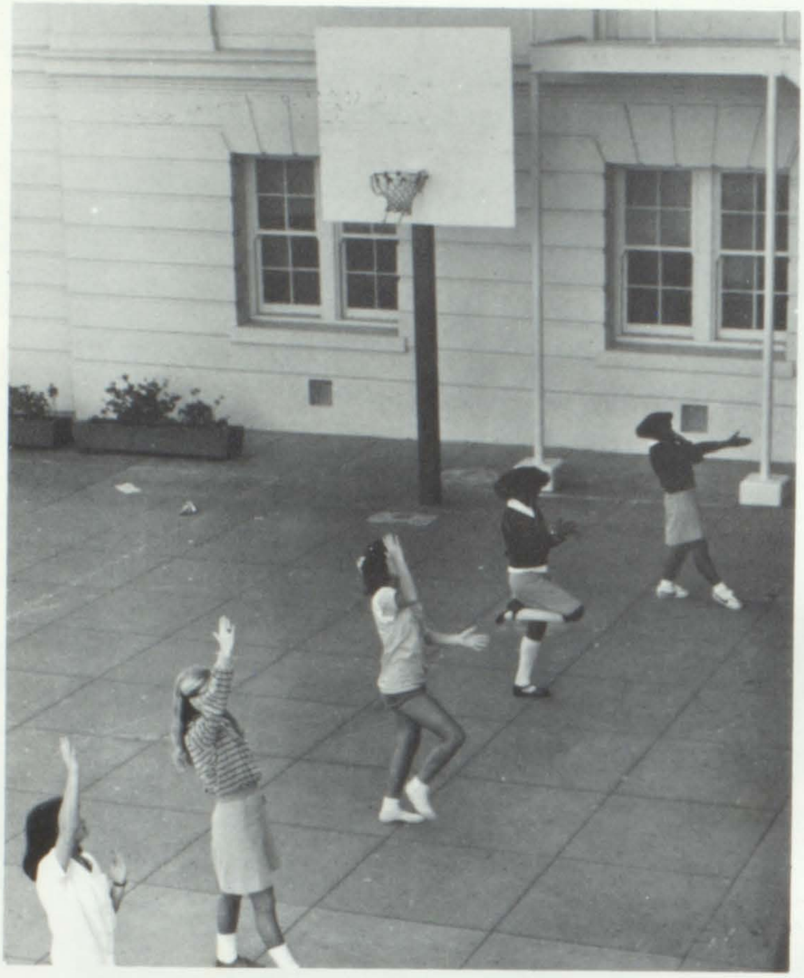

The Girls' Athletic Association, better known as "G.A.A.," is one of the busiest organizations in St. Rose. The twenty member council, moderated by Ms. Joann Momono, organizes all rallies, intramural sports, and other team sports such as volleyball, basketball, and softball in achieving their primary goal: To make St. Rose number one in both school spirit and athletics.

The BLOCK CLUB is formed by students that have accumulated 1000 G.A.A. points. The students actively participate in G.A.A. Whether it is being on a team, going to games, or just making posters, these G.A.A. points add up. At 200 points a student receives her number, signifying her year of graduation. At 500 points she receives her circle. At 750 points, she receives her Saint Rose pennant. At 1000 points she receives her block and immediately becomes a member of the block club. Lastly, at 2000 points she receives a trophy. This signifies outstanding participation in athletics.

Events

The bell rang; freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors came pouring out of their classrooms. Reaching the auditorium, the seniors and freshmen were laden with gifts for that unknown person. As the seniors took their seats, the excitement ran through the large room like electricity. Upper and lower classmen waited for the seniors to pick an apple off the tree which would disclose the name of the freshman who would become their little sister. Starting off the year, this event formed a unity between the freshmen and seniors which would strengthen the bridge between upper and lower classmen.

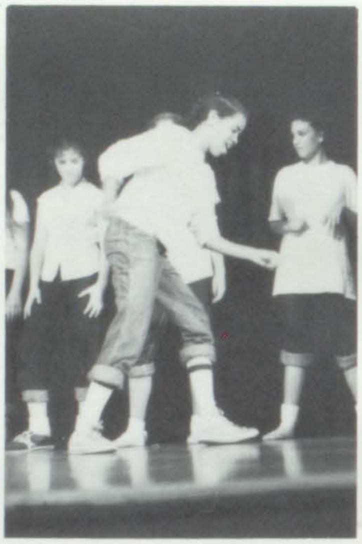

As the students of St. Rose participated in masses, and class retreats, their friendships were again strengthened. Taking part in these religious activities helped the girls of St. Rose over obstacles in their lives and to cross the bridges to which they came.

On Nov. 15, arriving at Sabella's, the juniors were anticipating receiving their rings from the seniors of their choice. A bond was renewed between these two classes through this event. The bridge of friendship was once again successfully crossed.

Another bridge was transversed through the Christmas Dance. For the first time in years the dance was held off-campus enabling the whole school to attend. "Pinetree Paradise" was a great success in bringing the student body together to partake in the Christmas season.

The freshman play gave the freshmen class a chance to come together and start to create friendships which will last for years to come. Through this play "Yesterday in the 60's" the freshmen began to build a bridge of their own.

Big-Little Sister Day

Fall Frantics

Dateline: October 8, 1980
Place: Speedway Meadows,
Golden Gate Park
What: Exciting day filled with activities designed for lots of fun.

Once again, the G.A.A. council, headed by Lisa Michelis, organized a FALL FRANTICS that really helped keep the St. Rose spirit high. It was on that cool autumn day that the whole school gathered to stretch the old muscles in a number of games which brought much laughter and a few resolutions to "start jogging again." Volleyball, soccer, frisbee, softball, bicycling, and football kept the athletes panting, while the artists sucked in the fresh morning air and put extra energy into designing paintings beyond compare. After the fog lifted, the masses turned their attention to classmates and teachers running around, trying to unpack in a hurry. But it was just warm-ups for the faculty who later tried to take on the Seniors in the vigorous sport of softball. Unfortunately, Seniors can't be beaten and the faculty lost. Better luck in 1981.

G.A.A. President Lisa Michelis and Vice-President Trish McEvoy direct activities.

We see you, too, Mr. Devine!

YESTERDAY IN THE '60's''

The Freshman Play

Presented by the class of '84, ''Yesterday in the '60's'' was a fun-filled play about a talent scout looking for ''star material'' in a little town. The town, excited by all the commotion, put out their best acts which ranged from singing and dancing to a recitation of poetry. Many thanks to director Philipa Lazo and the Class of 1984.

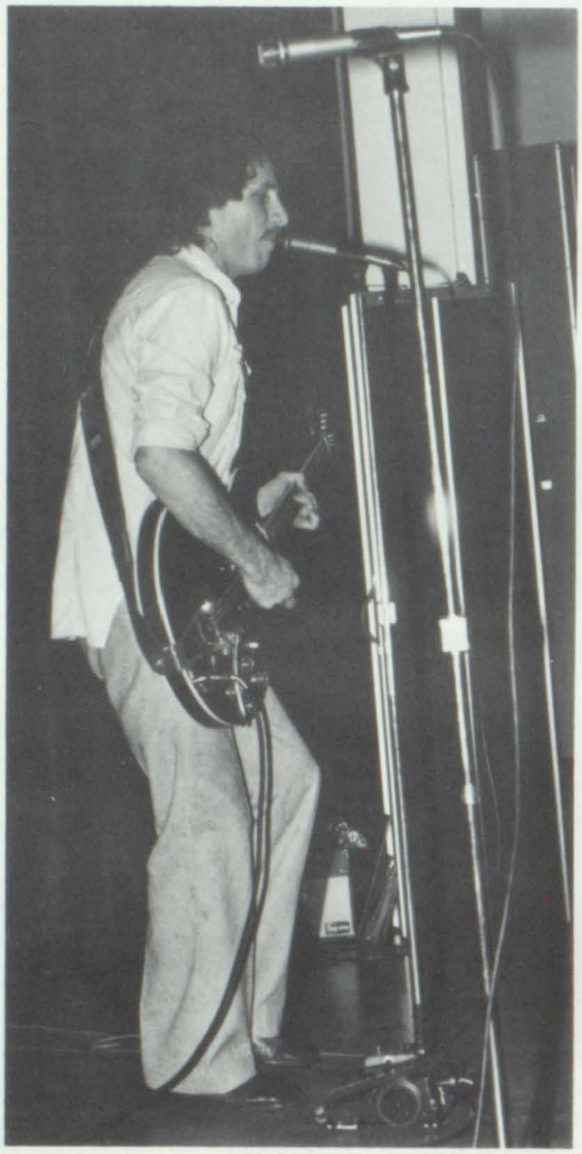

Pine Tree Paradise

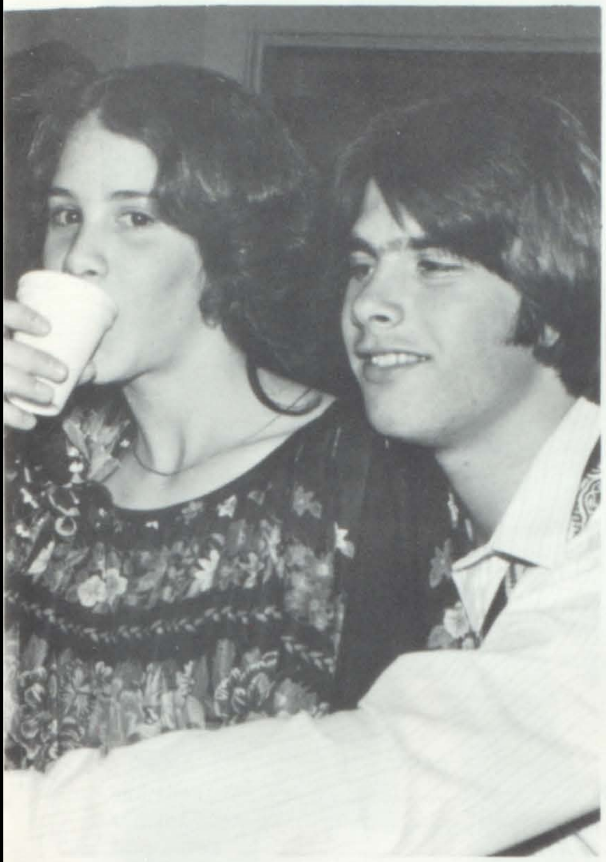

December 13th, the night everyone had been waiting for all semester, finally arrived. Many students had asked their dates months in advance, and the week before the dance everyone was bubbling over with the news of where they were having dinner and what they were going to wear. A tradition had been broken when the dance was held off-campus at the California Club, enabling the whole school to attend. From the looks of these photos, everyone had a marvelous time!

CLASSES

Bridges. Each classes is a bridge itself, from one year to the next. In the following pages you will see the students, concrete towers which make up St. Rose Academy. Not only are they bridges, but they use the school as a bridge. The freshmen, a new generation, walk through the doors apprehensively, as if testing the supports and going through the toll gate. Sophomores, as challengers, begin the long walk across, and become juniors, who are a breed apart in the middle. Together, those two classes—sophomores and juniors—are the suspensions. The seniors are supports, holding hands with the freshmen to keep the school unified and standing strong.

At times we felt the bridge we were building would be another London Bridge. Deadlines came too soon, rain fell when we wanted sun for pictures, or important group shots turned out blurry. But the bridge did not fall, and this yearbook spans proudly over the year 1980-1981. Each page has a little bit of Adea, a little bit of Ellen, and a lot of Saint Rose: faculty, students, administration, and friends. All traveled this bridge together and we tried to record this journey perfectly.

We would like to acknowledge the following people for their aid: Mr. O'Gorman, our photographer, and his staff; Sister Celeste; Sister Sharon; Mr. Ray Slye, the Herff-Jones Yearbook Company Representative, and his wife Pat; Ms. Nishikida; Ms. Cross, Mr. Kutis and Oscar Vasher. Also to Carmen, Janice, Margaret, Ros, Mary, Tracy, and Erin, without whose extra effort his book would never be possible. To Mr. George Devine, our moderator, we will just say "thanks". Words cannot express our gratitude for his time, support, "know-how", and encouragement.
